

Jean R. Freeman

March 29, 1938 - October 15, 2024

Jean R. Freeman, 86, went home to the Lord on October 15, 2024. She was the widow of Roderick B. Freeman. Born in Westmoreland County, Virginia, she was the daughter of Bernice (Hammond) and Hoyed Thompson. Jean was a homemaker who never met a lace doily she didn't love. She loved to spend time at the casino. If she wasn't there, she was playing games on her Kindle. She was an avid bowler, crossword puzzler, cared for her house plants, catching up on all the latest celebrity gossip, watching mysteries and crime shows. She was our very own Jessica Fletcher.

She will be remembered for her feisty personality and world-famous macaroni and cheese. She is survived by her daughters: Robin Freeman, Elizabeth Winton, and Dawn Freeman. Grandchildren: Erika Winton, Garrison "Big Guy" Winton, Devin Matthews, Kristen Roberts Taylor Winton, Desiree Pierce, Destiny Pierce, Ray King, and her great grand-dog, Porter. She was pre-deceased by her husband, Roderick Bruce.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the American Cancer Society.

“ Grandma,
Some of my fondest memories are from weekends at your house. Your house was always filled with love , even if it came in the form of you telling us like it is. You were truly one of a kind , and I miss our daily talks more than ever. You’ve always had our backs from start to finish and I’m grateful to call you my grandmother. No words can amount to how much I will continue to miss you. I love you to the end of this Earth.
With love,
Desi

“ Ever since I was a little kid, no matter how far away I lived, I wanted to be at Grandma’s House. There was always fun - conversation, energy and excitement. All of this, plus the “good” tv shows and the best mashed potatoes.

I miss your advice and encouragement already.💜

“ Grandma, you taught me that no day is complete without a slice of bread and butter. You got me my first ever puppy when I was a little girl. You turned me on to true crime shows and mysteries. To this day, all of these things are my favorite because of you ☐

“ Grandma, words cannot express how thankful I am for having you in my life. You always made sure that everyone in our family was taken care of. I will miss calling you and having you yell at my mom when she annoyed me. Although I will miss having you here with me, I'm glad you're no longer suffering and that you're finally reunited with Grandpa. I'll make sure to eat some tomato sandwiches in your honor ☐

Love,
Kristen
