“ I met Jillian and Brian when they came into our antique shop a few years ago. A year later I was walking to church when Jillian literally jumped out of their SUV to greet me with a big hug and immediately asked me about my husband, Patrick. We spent the rest of the morning in my kitchen swapping stories and catching up. Despite the difference in our ages we just seemed to click. Jillian suggested I join her at a water color class at the Ellenville Library a few weeks later. I met Jillian's mom that day and the three of us laughed and cracked jokes the entire time and every class was like being at Scout camp with your best buddies. We took a pastel class there in the fall and Jillian and Louann created beautiful daisies in pastel. She invited me to her house for lunch and told me how she and Brian found their beautiful home, their wedding and passions. She confided that she wanted a black wedding gown but relented to her mother's protests finally. Jillian was a gifted comedian and could create funny commercials for mundane objects. I loved her story about discovering a group of bugs on her sidewalk and calling Brian's dad about what she was observing. She invited us to her birthday party and we enjoyed dinner with her family and her karaoke songs. Since meeting Jillian I have shared with my family and friends how courageous and hilarious she was. We will miss her and send our condolences to Brian and their families.
